

THE RUTLAND HERALD.

FRIDAY, JULY 10, 1868.

The Democratic Nominations and the Platform.

At last the great gathering of the Democracy have concentrated their forces and presented as their candidate for President Horatio Seymour of New York...

The candidate for the Vice-Presidency is Francis P. Blair, Jr., a member of the inevitable Blair family, who have been prominent in and out of all the different political parties for the past twenty years...

In these nominations the original plans of the Tammany wing of the Democracy have evidently been carried out, after having kept the convention in a turmoil by filibustering movements, until it was wearied out, and in despair fell an easy prey to the fowler's snare.

The platforms of the two great political organizations are now before the country. The one representing the principles of freedom, honor and integrity, and demanding the reconstruction of the government upon a loyal basis...

CAPABILITY OF FEMALES FOR THE PUBLIC SERVICE.—The capacity of females for public service is happily attested by the reports recently made to the select committee on retrenchment. Mr. Jencks, in his speech supporting the bill to create a Civil Service Department...

MIRAGE.—Dover, England, was assailed by a mirage, recently, to see Boulogne, in France, distinctly with the naked eye, and with a telescope the windows of houses and inhabitants could be clearly discerned.

COLONIZATION.—Gen. J. W. Phelps and J. K. Converse have issued addresses to the people of Vermont on behalf of some 25,000 freedmen who have applied for passage to Liberia, and proposing that contributions for their aid be made in the churches after July 4th.

Taxation of Government Bonds.

The bill which the committee on ways and means reported to the House of Representatives, Thursday, for the taxation of government bonds, against their own judgment and conviction, but in obedience to the order of the House, is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., that from and after the passage of this act, there shall be levied, collected and paid, a tax of ten per cent. on the amount of interest hereafter due and payable on all the bonds and other securities of the United States. To secure the collection of said tax, the amount of interest hereafter paid on any bonds or other securities of the United States bearing interest at six per cent.

HALF VOTES.—We have had many inquiries in reference to the meaning of the half votes that appear in the ballottings of the National Democratic Convention. We give the version of the St. Albans Messenger, which, as we understand it, is correct: "Considerable inquiry is made as to how the half votes originate in the New York convention."

WISCONSIN EDITORS' CONVENTION.—The Wisconsin editors held their twelfth annual convention at Milwaukee last week, the Minnesota editors joining them in their reunion and excursion. The annual address was delivered by Charles Seymour, Esq., of the La Crosse Republican, President of the Wisconsin Association, and a poem on the Daily Press by Mr. A. M. Thompson. The editors went to St. Louis on this excursion, and had a famous time, full reports of which are given in the St. Louis and Chicago papers.

RELEASED.—Joe Coburn and Mike McCool celebrated the Fourth as free men, having been released from prison in Dearborn county, Ind. Their friends received them enthusiastically.

COLFAX AT THE DEATH OF MR. LINCOLN.—The day that Mr. Lincoln saw the last of earth he asked Colfax, whom he warmly esteemed and relied upon, to accompany him to the theatre that night. It was the day but one before Colfax was to start on his Rocky Mountain trip.

Colfax replied: "It is impossible, sir; all my time is engaged." "What kind of a play is this 'American Cousin,' Colfax asked the President." Mr. Colfax said it was just the thing to be amused with and made forgetful of oneself.

Then, said Lincoln, "here is a little message I want you to carry to the miners. Let me read it to you." And, while they waited at the office door, Lincoln read to Colfax his last composition in this world, and then placed it in his side coat pocket.

"Good-by," said Lincoln. "I'll telegraph you at San Francisco." That night Colfax, going home from a visit to the Postmaster-General, who lived, I believe, in the Speaker's present residence, passed by the Metropolitan Hotel. Seeking a crowd there, he hurried by, as is his wont when there are indications of a quarrel; but a man cried:

"Colfax! The Speaker stopped." "The President has been murdered!" said the man.

THE MILL IN WOLCOTT.—Bro. Sawyer of the Newdealer, tells the finale of the row in Wolcott or rather "mill" as he pugilistically calls it, which broke up Elder Himes' meeting. The "mill" which we alluded to last week, took place in Dist. No. 5, in Wolcott. The committeeman, L. Town, attempted to close the school house against some worshippers, who believing that their constitution guaranteed right of worshiping God according to the dictates of their own consciences, including also the right to worship where they had a mind to, (we suppose) "let in" a few dry knuckles upon Town, and "cleared him out"—leaving him with a very much colored face as a reward for his unjust attempt to put these gospel lights under the literal bushel!

THE HOT DAYS IN LAMOILLE.—The Newdealer thus notes the hot weather and its effects both upon individuals and corn: "The heat, for the past week, has been intense, and we hear of a great many persons, all about, who have been overtaken. Among these were W. C. Daine, Esq., Sheriff of the county, who on Friday last became so affected by the heat as to lose all use of his limbs for several hours. On the 8th day, also, we were informed by Sheriff Daine, H. A. Waterman, Esq., of Johnson, and three or four others were so overcome as to fall from the effects of heat. The sun during the day is perfectly scorching and the nights are 'muggy.'" But the corn,—gracious, how it pulls up!

DEATH OF PETER GAGGER.—The particulars.—Mr. Gagger left the Worth House, on Fifth avenue, New York, where he was staying with a delegation of friends, at 6 p.m. on Monday, to accompany George Evans of this city in a ride through the central park. While there he met John Devlin of New York, a man well known, being that the attempt of the State's Attorney to prosecute them for assault and breach of the peace, resulted, as did the pugilistic conflict, wholly to the advantage of the little church. We hope that, in the light of this signal victory of grace, we shall hear of no more attempts to prosecute those or any other holy men.

WESTERN CROPS.—Our friend, Wm. D. Marsh of Clarendon, who is traveling in the West, in a letter gives the following interesting account of the condition of the crops, which corrects the announcement made in the HERALD of June 11th, that the wet weather has endangered the crops.

THE GALAXY.—The Galaxy is the first of the July magazines. It has contributions from Admiral Porter, Dr. Hammond, late Surgeon-General of our army, Miss Annie Thomas, the novelist, Marion Harland, Eugene Benson, Celia Logan, Richard Grant White, Prof. Youmans and others. Admiral Porter discourses ably "The National Prospects and Resources," urging the impolicy of attempting to reduce the national debt during the present generation, and predicting in glowing terms the future wealth of this country. He also advocates the removal of the restrictions imposed upon our ship-building and foreign commerce by our present tariff.

HON. MRS. L. BENNETT.—The Burlington Free Press of Wednesday evening gives the following particulars relative to Judge Bennett not embraced in our notice of his death: Judge Bennett had been in failing health for some three months past. About two weeks since he decided to go to his son, Hon. E. H. Bennett of Taunton, Mass., and made the journey with difficulty, being obliged by physical weakness to stop over for two or three days at a time at three different places on the journey. Word came on Monday that he was not expected to live, and last night came the news of his decease.

BURLINGTON.—The Merchants' National Bank of Burlington declared a dividend of five per cent. July 1st. —The members of the Chittenden county Bar met at the Court House, Tuesday, at 10 o'clock, in Burlington, to take action in reference to the death of Judge Bennett. —Wm. Graves, an employee of the Burlington Woolen Mill Company, got his arm broken by being caught in the gearing of a loom, Tuesday. The fracture was set by Dr. Kent.

BASE BALL.—A match game of Base Ball was played at Sudbury, July 4th, between the Hortonia B. C. C. of that place, and Liberty B. C. C. of Orwell. But six innings were played, the score standing: Liberty 43, Hortonia 8.

BRATTLEBORO.—We gather the following items from the last Record and Farmer: —Work on the new building for the Savings Bank appears to have begun in earnest. —A letter dropped in our post office this morning was directed to "Bellisfall, Vt."

WINDHAM COUNTY NOMINATIONS.—At the Union Republican Convention of Windham county, held at Newfane on Tuesday last, the following ticket for county officers was nominated: For Senators—David Goodell, Brattleboro; H. H. Wheeler, Jamaica. Judges—P. W. Dean, Grafton; Wm. H. Jones, Dover. Sheriff—S. N. Herrick, Brattleboro; State's Attorney—C. E. Arnold, Bellows Falls; Judges of Probate, A. Stoddard, Towns; and Royal Tyler, Brattleboro.

BRATTLEBORO.—We gather the following items from the last Record and Farmer: —Work on the new building for the Savings Bank appears to have begun in earnest. —A letter dropped in our post office this morning was directed to "Bellisfall, Vt."

WELL DESERVED.—Gov. Page has presented the Rutland Fire Department with two hundred dollars, as a token of his appreciation of their valuable services. They have accepted the gift and voted to make it the nucleus of a fund for the relief of disabled firemen, to bear the Governor's name—Burlington Free Press.

ST. K. Cobb of Westminister, was recently shown, at the farm of J. L. Perham, a sheep, the weight of the fleece being six pounds, and the carcass, 31 pounds.

PERSONAL.—Maj-Gen. Truman Seymour, who is well known in this country, has been appointed a member of an examining board, ordered to convene at Fortress Monroe, to devise and report upon a system of artillery tactics.

But Bath would not have it so. "Tell me all the story, dear Mrs. Wynne," she cried, "if you can. I know not what such sufferings as yours are, in experience, but I can sympathize with those who suffer. Tell me about your marriage and about Edelwild."

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"But Bath would not have it so. "Tell me all the story, dear Mrs. Wynne," she cried, "if you can. I know not what such sufferings as yours are, in experience, but I can sympathize with those who suffer. Tell me about your marriage and about Edelwild."

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"It will be twenty-six years this coming autumn since Edelwild was born."

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

Leontine.

BY MARY C. VAUGHN.

"It will be twenty-six years this coming autumn since Edelwild was born."

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

the young girl who knows and thinks no evil. In thought and life and unsoiled whiteness had prevailed. I had done good as I could. I had sought to assuage suffering, to wipe away tears, to clothe the destitute, and feed the hungry. I had loved God and human kind. I had obeyed, so far as I knew, all the precepts of Christianity. I had been religious, not with the service of the lips alone, but with every impulse of my heart, and yet God has meted out to me such a fate! Was it deserved?

"And he is living yet—you have not lost him dear Mrs. Wynne?"

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.

"I have told you that Edelwild was given me nearly twenty-six years ago. That was a year after my marriage, a year that had been crowded with revolutions, that had made my young life old with care. I had learned that I had been deceived where I trusted most fully, that I myself had passed the threshold and barred myself out from happiness.